

The rock that disliked his solitary life

A large rock emerged once the great waters had receded. He rose, solitary, on tall ground surrounded by meadows that were covered in an array of flowers of endless colours. He stood on the edge of a lovely wood that overlooked a flagged road.

